Nyaymurti sir

तेरे गिरने में तेरी हार नहीं,
तू इंसान है अवतार नहीं।
गिर, उठ, चल, दौड़ फिर
भाग।

क्योंकि जिंदगी संक्षिप्त है,
इसका कोई सार नहीं

This thing devours all things. All man, all beasts, all flowers and trees. Even the fiery sun, and the shadowy moon, will one day be devoured by this thing. Stone it grinds, metal it bites. And it shall make wood rot. Is it powerful? Well it is rather not, but it kills powerful things a lot. Its immortal yet it is not some type of god. What is it?

TIME IS VALUABLE

Contact: 9423208724, 9423208723.

Anthony was the kind of boy who would procrastinate brushing his teeth until they were practically tap dancing out of his mouth. One fine morning, his father, Mr. Always-On-Time, decided to have a serious talk with him about the importance of time management.

"Son," his father began, "time waits for no one. It's like a ninja—silent and swift. If you keep postponing things, you'll miss out on life's great circus!"

Contact: 9423208724, 9423208723.

Anthony, eyes half-open, nodded and promised he would change his ways.

Fast forward to a month later, Anthony's half-hearted attempts at being punctual were put to the test. He discovered he had won first prize in a singing competition. The prize? Tickets to the most spectacular, jaw-dropping circus in town! But, true to form, Anthony thought, "Eh, I'll collect the prize tomorrow. What's the rush?"

The next day, he leisurely strolled to the prize collection office, humming a tune and dreaming of cotton candy and acrobats. To his shock, the prize was now as useless as a chocolate teapot—it was a ticket to a circus show that had happened the day before! Anthony's jaw dropped faster than a clown's juggling balls.

He realized that procrastination had cost him an unforgettable night of magic and wonder. From that day on, Anthony vowed to be as swift as a cheetah when it came to seizing opportunities.

And thus, Anthony learned a valuable lesson: Time is precious, and procrastination is the sneakiest thief. You've listened to my story happily, so take it to heart—don't let life's circus pass you by!
